Nonprofit Cloud for Fundraising

A guide to growing donor relationships more effectively
Introduction

Fundraising, in an increasingly digital world, requires strategies that are embedded, or led by technology. 85% of nonprofit professionals say technology is the key to the success of their organizations, yet only 23% report they have a long term vision for technology.*

The best technology puts people first. Nonprofit technology can help you deliver donor-centric experiences that meet changing expectations and can support organisations in building trusted, lasting relationships.

Nonprofit Cloud helps you break down silos between fundraising, marketing, programs and leadership by giving everyone a single, shared view of your organization, supporters, and data. The backbone of Nonprofit Cloud is the world’s #1 Customer Relationship Management (CRM) system by Salesforce and the Nonprofit Success Pack (NPSP), to provide a single source of truth for all your constituent data. This allows your teams to get to know each donor, engaging on their terms to deliver exceptional experiences. Here are just a few ways it can help you now, and into the future:

- Your major gift officers can drive productivity on a modern mobile platform with instant analytics and income forecasting
- Your marketing teams can segment and craft highly personalized communications across direct mail and digital to strengthen support
- Programs teams can share transparent impact reports for specific funders
- Leadership can gain full visibility into revenue and staff performance
- IT teams can drive more innovation and automation across the organisation

Regardless of your sources of income, Nonprofit Cloud will empower your nonprofit to leverage a unified view of supporters and revenue to create donor-centric experiences at scale to drive fundraising performance.

Donor-Centric Experiences

One out of every two nonprofits say that competing for funds is a significant challenge today.* At the same time, people are experiencing more personalised experiences in their consumer life. Being donor-centric isn’t solely a focus on people who have made the largest gift. It is an organisation-wide mindset to understand and meet the needs of constituents and potential supporters along their philanthropic journey.

These experiences build trust relationships and bring people closer to your mission with the right message, at the right time, in the right place whether digitally or in person. Creating highly personalised, timely communications and experiences helps donors feel connected to your mission, shows you’re listening, and increases conversion. This mindset impacts future giving, donation upgrades, and overall donor retention.

Data-Driven Fundraising

Good quality, up-to-date and reportable data in one place helps fundraisers target and connect with the right people at the right time. In today’s digital world nonprofits need this consolidated data to have a full view of each supporter, their passion, and why they give to your cause. Take a minute to think about the value of your constituent data.

- Program interest data helps you inspire them to click “donate” from an email
- Donor preference and history helps you identify how to better connect and communicate
- Data on top donors provides an opportunity to target and acquire similar donors

These donor-centric experiences require a data-driven philosophy and strategy. As our offline and online worlds continue to blur, only technology can help you connect at scale and capture this trusted data.

Based on our 2019 Fundraising Productivity Study, we know good data actually correlates to fundraising success. For example, nonprofits who captured more types of data such as volunteering data, organization affiliations and program interest, more frequently exceeded their fundraising goals.

The challenge, however, is that respondents of this survey shared that good data is still a work in progress for most nonprofits, with only 26% considering their data quality good.
